(a) for one journey to and one journey from the place of meeting;—

(i) two third-class fares for the portion of each journey performed by railway; and

(iii) daily allowance at Rs. 7-8-0 per day.

(3) The relinquishment by a member of his salary under section 10 of the Act shall be final as regards his whole term of office as member and shall not be liable to be revoked at any time during such term.

(4) A member, who has to leave his usual place of residence to attend a meeting, may draw daily allowance admissible to him under clause (i) of sub-rule (1) or clause (ii) of sub-rule (2), as the case may be,—

(a) for each day of attendance at the meeting;

(iii) for the day before the meeting of a Committee when held at Government, provided that the member is in Government on that day;

(iv) for days of adjournment in the course of a continuous sitting and for holidays;

Provided that the member is present at the place of the meeting on those days;

Provided further that in the case of days of adjournment other than holidays the member attends the sitting on the day before the adjournment as well as on the day of the re-assembly.

Explanation.—A sitting shall be deemed to be continuous if the number of days between the last day of a meeting and the first day of another meeting is not more than seven.

(1) During an adjournment of a sitting for a period exceeding seven days, if a member leaves the place of meeting he may draw either the daily allowance admissible to him under clause (3) of sub-rule (1) or clause (4) of sub-rule (2), as the case may be, for the period of adjournment or a single third-class railway fare or a single first-class railway fare, as the case may be, for the portion performed by railway of the journey to and from his usual place of residence, whichever is less, provided he attends the sitting on the day before the adjournment as well as on the day of the re-convening.

8. Mileage allowance for a journey between two stations shall be calculated with reference to the shortest ordinary route or to the route which is declared by the Provincial Government to be the shortest route for the purpose of the travelling allowance rules. Where two or more routes are equally short, the allowance shall be calculated by the cheapest.

If a member travels by a route which is not the shortest but is cheaper than the shortest, his mileage allowance shall be calculated by the route actually used.

9. The military route book shall be taken as the authority for distances in the case of all journeys and the control points used in the military route book shall be taken as the fixed points at which journeys commence or end. Where no such control point is given, the distance shall be calculated with reference to the principal post office.

Explanation.—When a journey by road is combined with a journey by rail or steamer, unless such journey by road is a journey to or from the member's headquarters, mileage allowance shall be calculated on the distance actually travelled without regard to the control points.

10. When a journey is performed by a motor car between places connected by a railway, the charge shall ordinarily be limited to what would have been admissible had the member travelled by rail.

11. In calculating mileage allowances, fractions of a mile shall be omitted from the total of a bill for any one journey, but not from the various items which make up the bill.

When bills are so countersigned, the Secretary of the Committee shall transmit to the Secretary the full details of the travelling allowance claims recommended by him. A certificate that the Secretary's sanction has been sent to the Secretary shall also be recorded in the bills countersigned by the Secretary of the Committee.

14. The entries in the bill shall be complete, the dates of the journeys shall be specified, and the total claim shall be entered in figures as well as in words. Errors and overwritings in bills are forbidden, and if any correction be necessary, the incorrect entry shall be cancelled in red ink and the correct entry initialed and duly audited.

15. No claim for travelling allowance not preferred within twelve months of its becoming due shall be paid without the sanction of the Accountant-General.

Explanation—Unless satisfactorily explained all belated claims of over one year shall be liable to rejection.

16. When members claim travelling allowance from Government for journeys made for any business unconnected with the Assembly or the Council, the claim shall be preferred in a separate bill and forwarded to the Secretary of the Department of Government concerned, who shall be the countersigning officer for the same.

17. When the whole journey or any portion thereof is not made by a member for the purposes specified in rule 7, no travelling allowance for such journey or portion shall be claimed or payable.

18. When a member is unable, from any cause beyond his control, to complete a journey to the place specified in rule 7, he may draw travelling allowance from his usual place of residence to the place at which his journey was interrupted and back, but he shall not be entitled to any daily allowance.

19. (a) The travelling allowance bills of members for their journey to Madras will be paid at the office of the Accountant-General, Madras, on bills countersigned by the Secretary after the member's arrival in Madras.

(b) Bills similarly countersigned for the daily allowance for India at Madras and the return journey may also be paid by the Accountant-General, Madras, on the last day of the meeting or of the member's halt in Madras or on the day immediately preceding that day; but the Accountant-General shall not pay daily allowance in advance for the last day.

(c) Payment of travelling allowance for the return journey shall be treated as advance and will be admitted finally to credit by the Accountant-General on receipt of a certificate from the member concerned through the Secretary that the return journey has been completed as charged for in the bill. This certificate shall be sent to the Secretary within a week after the completion of the return journey.

(d) The entries in Form A annexed hereto shall be filled in by members soon after their arrival in Madras and three days before their departure from the place. Certificates in Form B annexed hereto shall be signed and forwarded by the members to the Secretary to show that they have completed their return journey as charged for in the bill. Although dealers were still held up by large stocks, and the cotton market was weak and uncertain, there was no improvement in the price of oil, and the demand for Indian and shell during August averaged probably in the restricted imports from Japan, as a result of the war in the Far East. On the other hand, in the absence of demand, and also in sympathy with the weakness in the cotton market, prices of Indian rubber were depressed and the world market was holding prices about a tenth of a point higher than earlier in the year as an indication of weakness.

August was an unsatisfactory month for the cotton trade in general; the first symptoms of the United States cotton crop turning out to be larger than anticipated, and prices in world markets consequently declined. With Indian cotton completely out of parity with American cotton, demand was almost entirely dried up.

Yuccas.—These continued to be a complete absence of export country, and the only interest shown by North Indian mills, though South Indian mills bought for quantities. Prices ranged from Rs. 255 at the beginning to Rs. 220 at the end of the month. Stocks of good quality first crop yuccas continued to be available in the interior and shows in the markets consist entirely of second crop of inferior class and grade.

Caulis.—There continued to be no demand for my report on our Northern India and to the British Indian trade was the only agency. Plants in the markets are mainly of low quality, of the second or even third class but continue to be sold in the interior by carts. Prices of inferior quality increased practically stationary around Rs. 250, while the price of low numbers of average quality was declined to Rs. 750. There was only a moderate demand by local mills for Camodia grass in the western districts, prices ranging from Rs. 200 to Rs. 300.

It is understood, however, that London buyers were not getting the same business going in the holidays and also to large shipments that were arriving and causing a congestion. Using 1990–1991 as the base year, the percentage for each district of the study, when all the several price-setting stations recorded a fall in the market in either May or June, was 100%. The seasonal rise in the market, the price index for the year of rise to 100% is then used as the base year, 100%, in the present study. A listing of the classification is given in Table 1.
